

CAS International Sports Law

2025/2026

CAS International Sports Law*

Switzerland is home for most important sports organizations. Within that setting Zurich University is offering a CAS International Sports Law.

The Program

The CAS International Sports Law (19 ECTS) is intended for professionals who wish to gain an in-depth knowledge of legal and business aspects of international sports. The entire course is conducted in English.

An international team of lecturers ensures that course subject matter is not limited to national issues, but encompasses a growing body of international business law. The course comprises of two modules:

Module 1: Organization and Good Governance

- The first module provides an economic and legal insight into sports organizations. It analyzes how sport organizations operate and integrate on a national and international level. Participants will also focus on topics such as sport events, sport contract law and the resolution of sports-related disputes and arbitration.

Module 2: Dispute Resolution / General and Specific Areas

- The second module addresses the question of how sporting organizations tackle the current challenges of doping, illegal betting, gaming manipulation and corruption, that are endangering the fundamental principles of sporting competition.

Students who wish to achieve an LL.M. title can extend their studies and do an LL.M. in International Sports Law (70 ECTS).
